Adhesives market is expected to be a growing market

The adhesives market is expected to be a growing market, according to a new study reported on today by our friends at EMT WorldWide. Research analysts Ceresana have analysed the European adhesive market and found that Germany accounts for approximately 18.5% of all demand, followed by France, Italy and the UK.

Analysts anticipate that the demand for adhesives in medical engineering and the automobile, electrical and electronics industry will see growth rates of 2.7% to 3.8%.

Good news for our customers and us!
