

Getting your trials done with a live video meeting

In our determination not to let the pandemic keep us down, we have been pursuing further methods to help our customers push their businesses forward.

We have always provided a service for helping you evaluate materials and equipment by providing testing in our Technology Centre. Often the results are provided to you in a written Lab Report or by a video of the process.

We have many visitors; in some weeks, customers have been here every day, and I'm sure that that scenario will come again soon. In the meantime, we give you the opportunity to still be in the room with us, albeit virtually via a video link. You can see the testing or evaluation done live, and have discussions with our team during the exercise. It means that you can have as many colleagues as you like involved, and don't have to travel to us – although you are indeed very welcome if you want to visit!

Check out our new video if you would like to see how it works.
